

Preface: These are vows that we wrote together, and we're sharing in front you, our family and community as our witnesses.

Max: We commit to working to understand each other's words, feelings, and intentions.

Adi: We commit to having a playful, joyous, adventurous approach to living together.

Max: We vow to be humble. To have flexibility in argument. To have room to move, and hold our positions lightly.

Adi: We aim to take all that comes with flexibility, grace and a spirit of acceptance. So that as our parents age, as our bodies age, and our children grow, we have a malleable, open-hearted approach to taking on life's challenges together.

Max: We hold the intention to never be too rigid to see something differently. And take long walks when we need to.

Adi: Our marriage is a commitment to justice. We try to self-reflexively transform ourselves to transform the world. We show up for our greater purpose of being, as agents of change.

Max: We keep on dancing. We feel body and earth and earth and body, and remember to live uncereberally.

Adi: We commit to our home being a haven, for ourselves and for others.

Max: May we support each other individually and as a married team. May we nurture our independence and our connectedness.

Adi: May our marriage be for a long, long time.
